Salvation Army provides support services and shelter in a boarding house or motel for homeless persons over age 21. Because the adult shelter services are unsupervised, clients under age 21 cause special problems in finding suitable shelter. Disaster services are always available for families. The Salvation Army has household items (pots & pans, dishes, sheets, towels, etc.), a food pantry, and clothing free to clients who need the items. Prescriptions may also be purchased by this agency.

Who are we?

We are your friends, your neighbors, your merchants, your farmers - united to bring you the best food our community has to offer. A food Co-operative pools the money of its members to buy quality goods and products at a discounted rate. At the Glens Falls Food Co-op, we also strive to bring you the best of what's available locally.

Why local?

It's healthy - for you AND the environment. Local means your food travels less, which saves on carbon emissions. And many local producers are eco-friendly, employing organically-sound farming practices.

It's sustainable - for the whole community! Every dollar you spend buying local products nurtures the people you live and work with every day. When we keep our money in the community, it bolsters resources for all of us.

We want to know what goes into our food and we want to support our community with our dollars.

The GGFLDC will improve the economic conditions of the Glens Falls area by attracting new business and industry. One of the ways the LDC does this is through the administration of the Economic Development Revolving Loan Program

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT REVOLVING LOAN PROGRAM

The primary objectives of the revolving Loan Program are to create and retain employment opportunities for persons of low-to-moderate income through the expansion or creation of new businesses in the City of Glens Falls; to retain existing employment opportunities; to increase municipal sales and property tax revenues; to provide assistance to projects that present growth potential; to provide assistance to maintain, establish or expand small business – especially in the Central Business District; to leverage the greatest level of private funds possible; and to manage the loan fund in a manner that results in an increasing loan pool.

Comment By: Jackson Davis - July 31st, 2012 at 5:28pm MDT

Article: "Sustainability advocates see promise in rooftop gardening," by Doug Gruze
Glens Falls, NY. "At Cooper's Cave Ale Co., an experiment in rooftop gardening has grown into one of the city's ecological success stories. A miniature farm of tomatoes, herbs, squash and melons has transformed the desolate roof of the business' garage into a vital resource. "It's very easy to do. This is a fast way to create an ecosystem," Healy said of the green roof technology he and Tracy designed and installed for the business. "This is extremely innovative for the Glens Falls area. They're really ahead of the game here." Tracy would like more establishments to follow the gardening model..." [Post-Star, 7.8.12]
